Public Panel:
Paths through the crisis: Can enhanced financial integration provide the way forward for Asia and Europe
Venue: European Policy Centre,
Date and Time: 2nd of December 2011, 10:30am to 12:30pm

Abstract
The global financial and economic crisis has eroded confidence in the architecture of the global economy and its institutions resulting in a climate of global uncertainty and vulnerability. With the flow of capital moving from West to East and the re-emergence of Asia as a major global economic player, the cooperation between Asia and Europe will have a major impact on the health of the global economy. This co-operation through the Asia Europe Meeting (ASEM) - a process for dialogue between Asia and Europe - now boasts twelve members in the G20 and represents over 55% of global GDP. Through greater engagement, Asia and Europe can help overcome the global economic crisis and create effective regional and global economic governance systems.

Asia and Europe have much to share. The EU provides the benchmark for deepened regional economic and financial integration and its associated challenges. Asia, though not as deeply integrated, has proved resilient throughout the crisis with sustained growth rates and is now a major player in the global recovery. Both regions still need to integrate further, one to safeguard the health of the Euro and overcome the sovereign debt crisis; the other to meet the regional investment needs to sustain promising growth levels.

In response to calls for more effective global economic and financial governance, the Europe-Asia Policy Forum (EUforAsia), the Asia-Europe Foundation (ASEF), and the European Policy Centre (EPC), will jointly organise a public briefing to discuss the major developments in financial integration in Asia and Europe. The panel will feature expert analysis on the latest measures to address the Eurozone crisis, the question of internationalising the Renminbi, and the path forward for greater East-Asian Cooperation. The panel will also feature a presentation of the report from the “Workshop on the Impact of the Crisis on Regional Economic and Financial Integration in Asia and Europe”. Held over two days in Ljubljana, Slovenia in September 2011, the workshop brought together experts from both regions to generate informed recommendations on regional financial cooperation and how to prepare for future crises.

About the Workshop

The “Workshop on the Impact of the Crisis on Regional Economic and Financial Integration in Asia and Europe” was co-organised by the Asia Europe Foundation (ASEF), the Asian Development Bank Institute (ADBI), the University of Ljubljana (UL), the Europe-Asia Policy Forum (EUforAsia) and Prospex. Held in Ljubljana, Slovenia, from the 14th to the 16th of September 2011, the workshop brought together high level experts from Asia and Europe. The aim of the workshop was to generate innovative ideas and informed recommendations on how to prepare for future crises, identifying vulnerabilities and activities for more extensive cooperation. Experts also shared Asian and European perspectives on regional financial cooperation with the objective of fostering global integration. The workshop specifically discussed issues related to future monetary regimes, regional financial integration mechanisms, regulatory frameworks, fiscal policy implications, as well as setting the priorities for the next ASEM Finance Ministerial Meeting.
