BACKGROUND
Since its inception in 1998 the ASEF Journalists’ Seminar (ASEF JS) has been cultivating media representatives from Asia and Europe and involving them in the Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM) Process and ASEP’s activities. The Seminar widens and deepens media networks across Asia and Europe, contributes to the understanding of Asia-Europe relations among journalists and media, and trains their reporting and communication capabilities.

The ASEF Journalists’ Seminar is organised on a biennial basis in conjunction with the ASEM Foreign Ministers’ Meetings (ASEM FMMs) that alternate between Asia and Europe. The Seminar gathers journalists, media and communication practitioners and thematic experts from Asia and Europe for a closed-door, informal meeting to discuss important issues of common concern and its related media challenges.

Results of the ASEF Journalists’ Seminar, including practical handbooks or policy recommendations, are presented at the ASEF Foreign Ministers’ Meeting, and shared among the ASEM stakeholders as well as

11TH ASEF JOURNALISTS’ SEMINAR
The 11th ASEF Journalists’ Seminar (ASEF JS11) is slated to take place in conjunction with the 11th ASEM Foreign Ministers’ Meeting (ASEM FMM13) on 17-22 November 2017 in Naypyidaw, Myanmar. Following up on the recommendations of the 9th ASEF Journalists’ Seminar and the call by ASEM Leaders and Ministers to create awareness and contribute to the implementation of the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), the topic for this year’s JS edition is “Shaping Perceptions and Minds towards Achieving the SDGs”.

While journalism has traditionally focused on covering conflict and societal challenges, Constructive Journalism\(^1\) could potentially pave the way for greater awareness and support for the SDGs through a focus on the achievements these have accomplished to date. The ASEF JS11 will therefore in practice explore how a Constructive Journalism-based approach to reporting can be utilised by media houses and journalists to shape positive perceptions among ASEM societies about the SDGs and their achievability by 2030.

The 11th ASEF Journalists Seminar is organised by the Asia-Europe Foundation (ASEF) in partnership with the Ministry of Information of Myanmar. Close synergies are envisaged between the Seminar’s programme and outcomes with the ASEF FMM13 and the 8th Model ASEM, an ASEF project in the field of youth and education.

PARTICIPANTS
* Ca. 25 practicing, young journalists and reporters from all media, aged 25-40 and from the 51 ASEF partner countries\(^2\) selected through an online, ASEF-wide Open Call for Participation, as well as 12 local journalists from Myanmar.

* Around 10-15 resource persons, including keynote speakers, panellists, moderators, trainers and volunteers from:

  * Media and thematic experts
  * ASEF representatives, including representatives from the Ministries of Foreign Affairs, Ministries of Information/Communication
  * Representatives from International Organisations and Non-Governmental Organisations

\(^1\) Constructive journalism is “rigorous, compelling reporting that includes positive and solution-focused elements in order to empower audiences and present a fuller picture of truth, while upholding journalism’s core functions and ethics”. www.constructivejournalism.org/about

\(^2\) ASEF consists of 53 partners: Australia, Austria, Bangladesh, Belgium, Brunei Darussalam, Bulgaria, Cambodia, China, Croatia, Cyprus, the Czech Republic, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, India, Indonesia, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Kazakhstan, Korea, the Laos PDR, Latvia, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malaysia, Malta, Mongolia, Myanmar, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, the Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Romania, the Russian Federation, Singapore, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Thailand, the United Kingdom, Viet Nam, the European Union and the ASEAN Secretariat.
The multiple benefits for ASEF JS11 participants include:

- Gain regional and national insights into and practical training on ASEM, the SDGs and Constructive Journalism
- Contribute to the Asia-Europe journalist collaboration
- Engage with ASEM Officials, up to the level of Asian and European Foreign Ministers, attending the ASEF FMM13
- Join and be part of a network of Asian-European young journalists and media representatives

The ASEF JS11 is built on 2 elements:

1) 2-day Seminar in Naypyidaw

The programme in Myanmar consists of thematic discussions and workshops provided by ASEF and partner organisations on Constructive Journalism and reporting on the SDGs, through the prism of Environment, Education, and Culture.

2) Involvement in the 13th ASEM Foreign Ministers’ Meeting (ASEF FMM13)

All participants will have access to the ASEF FMM13 Press Centre and the official Press Conference where they will be able to gather information to report on the outcomes of the Meeting and its themes.

The overall theme of the ASEF JS11 will be “Shaping Perceptions and Minds towards Achieving the SDGs”. More specifically the seminar focuses on 3 sub-topics related to the SDGs and explores how they could be covered from a Constructive Journalism-based approach:

1. Environment
   The future of this planet greatly relies on the implementation of the 2030 Agenda. Climate change, clean water shortage, and plastic waste all put enormous pressure on the environment and are mainly the cause of human activity. However, there is a huge information gap between human consumption and direct impact on the environment. How can media close this gap and shape attitudes towards the environment? How can journalist take the lead in influencing individual consumption patterns in order to reduce the personal footprint?

2. Education
   Education is essential for achieving all the SDGs. How can educational key players in society and the media then work closer together to shape a new, global mind-set of lifelong learning for sustainability? How can education and media leverage on each other’s potential to create the necessary awareness, understanding and attitudes for sustainable action?

3. Culture as driver and enabler of SDGs
   The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development marked a substantial step forward for culture, wherein culture was placed in development policy for the first time. Culture was recognised as an important dimension for achieving the SDGs covering all aspects – human, social and economic, as it offers the potential to inspire a critical and constructive view on the current approaches to sustainability. Given this background, there is a need for the precise role and impact of culture on sustainable development to be researched and analysed, and the results to be widely disseminated. How can the media address this need and encourage deeper interest in culture’s contribution to sustainable development? How can the culture sector and media co-create newer forms of storytelling that can effectively convey global issues to local communities?

The Asia-Europe Foundation (ASEF) promotes understanding, strengthens relationships and facilitates cooperation among the people, institutions and organisations of Asia and Europe. ASEF enhances dialogue, enables exchanges and encourages collaboration across the thematic areas of culture, education, governance, sustainable development, economy and public health.

ASEF is an intergovernmental not-for-profit organisation located in Singapore. Founded in 1997, it is the only institution of the Asia-Europe Meeting (ASEM).

ASEF runs more than 25 projects a year, consisting of around 100 activities, mainly conferences, seminars, workshops, lectures, publications, and online platforms, together with about 125 partner organisations.

Each year over 3,000 Asians and Europeans participate in ASEF’s activities, and much wider audiences are reached through its various events, networks, and web-portals.
